

It's a group effort: Thank you to all of the volunteers who supported the College in 2015!

Self-regulated professions rely on volunteers who are members of the professional body and appointed lay (i.e., public) members to help set and administer standards for admission and conduct, to ensure strong internal governance, and to raise the profile and credibility of the profession and its members.

Statutory committees help administer standards through delegated authority under the College of Applied Biology Act

56 volunteers supported the College in 2015!