Employment Opportunity: NRTG Electrofishing Field Instructor

The Natural Resources Training Group (NRTG) is recruiting Fisheries Field Instructor(s) to assist with our community-based training programs.

As a Fisheries Field Instructor, you will organize and teach NRTG's field-based fisheries courses for specific clients or general admission courses based in communities throughout Canada. This part-time, contract position may require travel and stay in various communities for the duration of our short (two-day) and longer (two to five week) training programs.

Candidates must be eligible or registered with the College of Applied Biologists.

An ideal Fisheries Field Instructor candidate:

- Leadership and mentoring skills and abilities
- Specialized knowledge and experience conducting backpack electrofishing, fish and fish habitat inventory and restoration.
- Experience and aptitude as a teacher, mentor, or community leader
- Passionate, patient, a 'people person'
- A team player
- Able and willing to travel for course deliveries

This position is a part-time, seasonal contract opportunity that will fit into your other workload or employment. This rewarding position has strong potential for personal growth and expansion. Come work with our team, the most experienced natural resource trainers in Canada!

Please apply by sending a short message of interest, a current resume, and three references to: darren@nrtraininggroup.com. Please no phone calls.
