

Call for Contract Trainers and Curriculum Development Specialists:

We are seeking independent contract trainers, as well as course content developers to provide services in the development and delivery of programs on behalf of Natural Resources Extension Program (NREP). Ideally, candidates will have experience in an instructional and/or curriculum-based development role, and previous experience working in an educational setting alongside government and industry to provide guidance and support in the progressive and ever changing Natural Resource/Environmental sector.

Suitable candidates for either of these positions will possess the following attributes:

- Have experience as an instructor and/or mentor
- Possess and convey expertise in applicable related subject matter.
- Ability and history of working with diverse cultures, sometimes in remote communities.
- Be friendly, approachable, and a team player.
- A professional designation such as RPBio or RBTech(or the eligibility to obtain).

Please Note that this position is a part-time, contract based position suitable for individuals who have an already flexible schedule or would like to augment their current income. NREP offers competitive rates and unlimited growth depending on availability of an individual, course interest, and diversity of subject matter expertise.

Interested? Please mail or email your application including a short message about yourself including information on subject interest and a current CV by February 25, 2019.

We appreciate your submissions, only those chosen for this opportunity will be contacted.
